COMMENTS & REASON FOR DECISION:

As discussed in detail:

Franklin debate doesn't cut off neg weight for impacts. Cp pretty clearly solves 100% — maybe even better. On elec: Obama <sup>uniqueness</sup> outweighed — but 2 day scenario on down-ticket rank gives unimputed & uninf to access risk of nuclear war, etc.

COMMENTS & REASON FOR DECISION:

This debate is really about the alt, not the impact.

Once neg wins their framework for evaluating the alt, they don't need to win much impact.

Aff should be better saying can't get to socialism, not that socialism is bad.

Unfortunately, practically conceding this makes that nearly impossible to win.

COMMENTS & REASON FOR DECISION:

① Not knowing where your cards/blocks are is not an excuse to not use prep time looking for them — MAJOR pet peeve — learning how to stay organized is vital in life — debate should teach that skill — obviously there are sometimes exceptions, but please do not expect me to provide lots of free prep time just b/c you haven't learned to keep your business together. /rant

② IAR really inefficient — need to be clearer and more selective in order to communicate more arguments. ZAR as ① radically new — don't allow debates to develop so late.

COMMENTS & REASON FOR DECISION:

The neg doesn't answer the state will fight back arguments and does not distinguish its alternative in a way that would avoid this offense. There is also no reason why ~~the~~ one couldn't do the plan and advocate a refusal to participate in the structures of capitalism. I don't think the alternative solves, if it does the permutation ~~points~~ ~~that~~ ~~of~~ ~~the~~ allows the Aff to access that as well.
